Your Excellency,

I am pleased to acknowledge your Letter N.05167/2009 of September 2009, in which you requested a message from the Holy Father for the participants of the upcoming World Congress of SIGNIS. I would now ask you kindly to transmit the following response:

HIS HOLINESS WAS PLEASED TO BE INFORMED OF THE WORLD CONGRESS OF SIGNIS TAKING PLACE IN CHIANG MAI, THAILAND ON OCTOBER 17-21. HE SENDS HIS CORDIAL GREETINGS TO ALL THOSE TAKING PART. THE NECESSITY FOR RESPONSIBLE DIRECTION AND USE OF THE MEDIA, IN ITS MESSAGE AND ITS METHODS, APPLIES IN A PARTICULAR WAY TO THE YOUNG. Message

It gives me great pleasure to extend my cordial greetings and my best wishes to the organizers, speakers and the participants of SIGNIS World Congress, which is to be held at the Empress Convention Centre in Chiang Mai from 17-21 October 2009

The theme upon which you reflect at this World Congress is a very a relevant one: Media for a Culture of Peace - Children's Rights, Tomorrow's Promise. In a globalized world various elements have become ever more interdependent, thanks to the spectacular progress and rapid expansion of the mass media. Communication and information today represent a force which can very powerfully serve the great and noble cause of peace, but which can equally aggravate tensions and favour new forms of injustice and of violations of human rights (cf. 17th Message for the World Communications Day, 25 March 1983).

On "Children and the Media: a Challenge for Education", Pope Benedict XVI points the importance of media education in two perspectives: the formation of children by the media, and the formation of children to respond appropriately to the media as an industry and to the need for active and critical participation of readers, viewers and listeners. Within this framework, training in the proper use of the media is essential for the cultural, moral and spiritual development of children (cf. 41st message for the World Communications Day 20 May, 2007).

It is challenging to give a moral conscience by guaranteeing an integral development of children. In view of this the society and the family must create an environment of peace and human dignity for the children of today. To this great endeavor, I wish to commend all the organizers, speakers and participants to the protection of the Blessed Virgin Mary, conveying to you all the Apostolic Blessing of His Holiness Pope Benedict XVI.

Given in Bangkok, at the Apostolic Nunciature on 27th August 2009 the memorial day of St. Monica

Apostolic Nuncio

Dear Participants to the “WORLD CONGRESS OF SIGNIS”:

As Host Country of this World Congress of SIGNIS, we welcome each and every one of you-the participants to this Congress.

In the name of the Catholic Bishops’ Conference of Thailand, I would like to welcome all participants to the “Land of Smiles.”

It is a great honor for us that Chiang Mai has been selected once again as the venue for a very important event, like the “WORLD CONGRESS OF SIGNIS” Chiang Mai was likewise honored to be the Host City of the ASIAN MISSION CONGRESS a few years ago. The wonderful memory of that event is still fresh in our mind.

The Theme of this Congress -CHILDREN’S RIGHTS, TOMORROW’S PROMISE- is certainly a well chosen topic, considering the deplorable situation of some countries around the world in relation to this matter. The various activities during the Congress have been well planned and should prove to be very stimulating for all the participants.

We pray that the results of this Congress would be very encouraging for all the member countries of SIGNIS, and that they will all be put to good use according to the needs of and opportunities in each country.

Once again, a hearty welcome! May the Lord abundantly shower His blessings upon the participants as well as all the activities in the Congress. May the outcome of this Congress be blessed by God with fruitfulness, for all the member countries and beyond.

Fraternally yours in the Lord,

(+Bishop George Phimphisan, C.Ss.R.)

Cooperation for Children's Rights

In this year, Pope Benedict XVI has appointed new bishops of the 4 dioceses in Thailand. It is a big change for our Thai Church history.

The Pope says, in his encyclical letter on integral human development in charity and truth (29 June 2009) that “an illustration of the significance of the moral education problem is offered by the phenomenon of international tourism which can be a major factor in economic development and cultural growth, but can also become an occasion for exploitation and moral degradation” (address to the Bishops of Thailand on their “Ad Limina” Visit, 16 May 2008, n.61).

On the means of social communications, the Pope says “The media can make an important contribution towards the growth in communion of human family and the ethos of society when they are used to promote universal participation in the common search for what is just” (n.73)

SIGNIS hold its Congress on October 17-21, 2009 celebrating the World Mission Sunday at our Sacred Heart Cathedral.

I still remember the UNDA-OCIC Congress that took place last 1990 in Bangkok (some 19 years ago). I am glad that the 100 students of Montfort College, Regina Coeli College and Sacred Heart School will gain the good experiences through workshop on the theme: Children's Rights, Tomorrow's Promise.

May the Lord bless you and for the success of this congress. Let us continue to cooperate for our Children's Rights.

In Christ,

+ Francis Vira

Message from
His Excellency Mr. Abhisit Vejjajiva
Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Thailand

The Kingdom of Thailand upholds freedom of religion, and the Catholic Church has blossomed over its many centuries in the Kingdom. It has played a significant role in communicating peace and harmony to all mankind. In today's dynamic world, with advancement in technology and the wide range of media, the Church has guided people in creating and promoting peace, cultural diversity, human rights and freedom of speech.

It is an honour for Thailand to hold this year's SIGNIS World Congress 2009 in Chiang Mai, the ancient city where culture and faith have long flourished. I wish to commend the World Catholic Association for Communication, or SIGNIS, for choosing "Media for a Culture of Peace-Children's Rights, Tomorrow's Promise" as the theme for this World Congress. Indeed, media holds a strong influence in people's behavior, and in this borderless world, media can help prepare future generations to build peace and harmony.

I wish the delegates and participants the very best in achieving their goals to promote a 'Culture of Peace' and the rights of the children, through the contribution of a creative media, to secure a better future for generations to come.

On behalf of the Royal Thai Government and the Thai people, I wish to extend a warm welcome to all international delegates and participants in the SIGNIS World Congress 2009. May the Congress find success and produce valuable outcomes.

(Abhisit Vejjajiva)

Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Thailand

October, 2009

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the first SIGNIS World Congress in Asia.

Despite enormous challenges and limitations, including the challenge posed by the H1N1 virus, we are here to participate in this wonderful Congress of Communicators. We thank you for coming.

What you see today has been made possible by the untiring efforts and dedication of many, many people.

This Congress would not have come about without the blessings and support of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of Thailand, the coordinating efforts of Professor Chainarong Monthienvichienchai and his team, the National Office for Social Communication of Fr. Anthony Vorayuth, the Sisters, the students and teachers of Catholic Schools and a large number of volunteers. They combined their efforts with our SIGNIS Asia team under Lawrence John and the Brussels team of our Secretary General Alvito de Souza to make this a reality. We offer our sincere thanks to them for this monumental effort.

This is a unique Congress bringing together the creativity of children, young people and communication professionals. This Congress must be one of difference and a Congress for change.

If the theme of our Congress is Media for a Culture of Peace it is because our world is still marked by bloody and destructive conflicts; the rights of millions of people have been violated. People continue to be exploited, abused and killed. The pursuit of peace is our reason for existence. This is what the church is all about.

This is going to be a Congress with a difference because our theme is also about Children's Rights. Two thirds of our world's population is made up of young people and they too have become the subject of violence, abuse and exploitation. They are our future and so they must be our concern.

If this Congress is to bring change then it must be a Congress to build bridges. Too often the rights of the young have been ignored by the media itself. Youth have a right to demand truth and respect from the media. They have a right to become involved and participate in the media. We, as adult professionals, must facilitate this. You will see our first attempts, in this Congress, where you see many young people creatively and actively involved. We need their imagination to see the truth and to help us engage in the task of bringing about life changing programmes and activities.

This Congress must also build bridges between and among people of all faiths. It is not by accident that this Congress is being held in a Buddhist nation. If SIGNIS is to be a communication arm of the Church then, necessarily, it must consciously carry out its mission with people of all faiths.

We must also be a bridge between the Church and secular media working together in mutual respect and on mutual concerns. And so we have brought media resource persons to show us the way.

We will have a Congress for change and a Congress with a difference.

God Bless your commitment and dedication.

Yours sincerely,
Augustine Loorthusamy
President SIGNIS World
October 2009.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF THAILAND

It was the Portuguese from Europe that first set foot in Muang-Thai when they occupied Malaca making it a colony and the center of trade in the Far East. The country was called SIAM.

In 1511 the Portuguese viceroy Alfonso Di Albuquerque sent an ambassador to Ayuthaya during the reign of King Rama Thibodi II.

In 1567 the first missionaries namely: Dominican Priests and Franciscan priests entered Siam during the reign of King Maha Jakkrapat. Since 1607 Jesuit missionaries arrived during the reign of King Eka Thotsarot.

In 1662 Msgr. Pierre Lambert de la Motte MEP, (Paris Foreign Missions Society), Vicar Apostolic of Cochinchina, arrived in Ayuthaya with two priests.

In 1664 Msgr. Francois Pallu MEP, Vicar Apostolic of Tonkin, joined him. In Siam, there was a strong community of Annamite and Japanese Christians who had been expelled or chose voluntary exile due to Christian persecution. The missionaries ministered to them.

Msgr. Francois Pallu returned to Rome in 1665 and prevailed with Pope Clemennt IX to entrust the Vicariate of Siam to the Society of the Foreign Missions of Paris. On March 25, 1674 the Pope confirmed this in an Apostolic Brief and consecrated Fr. Louis Laneau as Titular Bishop of Metellopolis and first Vicar Apostolic of Siam. Msgr. Louis Laneau wrote about 26 books in the Thai language.

King Narai welcomed the missionaries and the mission prospered. He gave the grants of land and the seminary was established in 1665. The seminary became famous and was later relocated to Penang. In 1672, the local congregation of Sisters known as the Lovers of the Cross, was founded.

On December 1685, King Narai sent an ambassador to the Vatican to have an audience with Pope Innocent XI. This was an event that marked the relationship between Siam Catholicism. Medals were struck to mark the event.

At this time the number of Catholics in Siam was between two and three thousand. They were served by the missionaries who in turn built churches and one college along the Chao Phraya River. The Church was beginning to make an impact in the educational field which continues this day.

When M. de la Loubere (French ambassador) left Siam, Phara Phetracxa stirred up a revolution against the government. King Narai was deposed and there was a great persecution against Catholicism.

In 1690, peace and order were restored and the missionaries released. Msgr. Laneau died in 1696 and was succeeded by Bishop Louis de Cice, who continued the work of evangelization.

In 1767 war broke between Ayuthaya and Burma. The Burmese swept into the Kingdom and burned the city. Churches were burned and the old Portuguese village was totally destroyed. The Bishop was deported to Burma and the work of the Church came to a halt. But the Catholics joined King Taksin in restoring independence. The work of evangelization was restored in Thon Buri the new capital city and during the Rattanakosin Era.

It maybe noted that during the time of Msgr. Garnault (1786-1811), the restoration of the Mission begun. In 1827, the decree of Pope Leo XII gave the ecclesiastical jurisdiction over Singapore to the Apostolic Vicar of Siam. Propaganda Fide confirmed this on May 12, 1834.

The number of Catholics and missionaries increased. Msgr. Courvez (1834-1841) asked Rome to nominate a Co-adjutor Bishop. On July 3, 1838 Msgr. Pallegoix was nominated and consecrated Bishop.

On September 10, 1841 The Brief "Universi Dominici" from Rome, proclaimed the separation of the Mission into two Vicariates: the Apostolic Vicariate of "Occidental Siam" comprising Singapore, Malacca, Penang and Southern Burma. Msgr. Courvez was the Apostolic Vicar and Apostolic Vicariate of "Oriental Siam" it remained Siam. Msgr. Pallegoix (1841-1862), was the Apostolic Vicar. He was a great scholar and linguist, author of multi-dictionaries and a major work. He was able to work out the renewal of a French alliance with Siam.

Msgr. Pallegoix renovated the printing press with materials from France thirty years ago, the first printing press in Siam. He bought and brought photos with photo cameras from France after reading a scientific article from a book about the invention. He was the person who introduced photography in Siam at that time.

On July 5, 1856, King Mongkut (Rama IV, 1851-1868) signed a treaty with France. Among its article was the renewal of the privilege granted to the Catholic missionaries in the 17th century by King Narai. The Bishop was esteemed highly by the King.

Thanks to the open-mindedness of King Mongkut and of King Chulalongkorn (Rama V, 1868-1910) the Catholic Church enjoyed peace and freedom under the direction of Msgr. Pallegoix and his successors, Msgr. Dupond (1865-1872) and Msgr. Vey (1875-1909) who devoted their attention to education, an area which developed greatly.

In 1885 P. Colombet founded the first modern Catholic school in Bangkok. the Assumption College, and placed it under the care of the Brothers of St. Gabriel in 1901 upon their arrival in the Kingdom. The Sisters of St. Paul de Chartres came some time before to take charge of and direct St. Louis Hospital.

On May 4, 1889 Pope Leo XIII erected the Apostolic Vicariate of Laos and Msgr. Cuaz was nominated Apostolic Vicar.

During the time of Msgr. Perros (1909-1947) the spread of the Catholic mission prospered more extensively throughout Siam. In 1932 during the reign of King Rama VII, there was a big change in politics from absolute monarchy to democracy. The King was under the Constitution.

In 1939, the government changed the name SIAM to THAILAND. During the 20th century many other religious congregations of men and women came to work in Thailand. The Catholic Church in Thailand has increased through the zealous labor of the Bishops and missionaries, an indication of greater growth.

The present king, King Bhumibol Adulyadej, (Rama IX) acceded to the throne in 1946. His Majesty the King and Her Majesty the Queen made an official visit to Pope John XXIII in the Vatican on October 1, 1960.

On December 18, 1965 Propaganda Fide judged that the time was ripe to establish the Sacred Hierarchy of Thailand. Strong support was given to Thailand by the former Apostolic Delegates. Two Ecclesiastical provinces of Bangkok and Tharae were created giving to Thailand the first Archbishop.

In 1973 Archbishop Joseph Jean Nittayo of Bangkok resigned for reasons of health and old age. His successor, Archbishop Michael Michai Kitbunchu was named by His Holiness Pope John Paul II as the first Cardinal of Thailand on February 2, 1983.

At that time there were a great political and social changes especially in the capital city of Bangkok. The Church had increase in the responsibilities and expansion in varied activities like welfare and social development and aid to the poor. The Church also took under her responsibility the refugees from Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and Burma. So, the Church assisted the government by organizing COERR (Catholic Office for Emergency Relief and Refugees) in 1975.

In May 1984, His Holiness Pope John Paul II, came for a short visit to Thailand, a wonderful opportunity for the faithful to feel his presence and made a visit to King Bhumibol Adulyadej.

In 1989 Pope John Paul II beatified 7 Thai martyrs in Rome, and on March 5, 2000 Fr. Nicholas Bunker Kitbamrung was also beatified in Rome.

Today in the dioceses of Thailand, the various responsibilities of the Bishops are well coordinated through the regular meetings of the Episcopal Conference.

At present the population of Thailand is around 65 million, but the Catholic population is hardly 334,000 that is about 0.4% only.

Thailand has been called the, "Land of Smiles." In spite of the pressures of multi-religious groups in the city, all the people live in peace and harmony. Indeed, in a spirit of friendship, the Catholics continue to collaborate in the spiritual-social development of the country.

SIGNIS Services Rome (SSR)

SIGNIS Services Rome (SSR) is the technical and pastoral branch of SIGNIS, the World Catholic Association for Communication, based at Piazza S. Calisto, in Rome. The service acts as a sort of “think-tank”, where the personnel constantly push the boundaries of existing technologies to be more cost effective and adapt appropriate tools for a clientele of Church and development actors in different parts of the world.

Over the last 50 years SSR has sought to bridge the media technology gap for those working in the remotest and most isolated parts of the world by researching, evaluating and providing efficient and affordable communication technologies to clients working to improve the livelihood of marginalized communities. SSR services initially focused on Africa but are now expanding to other parts of the developing world.

One of the most requested services from SSR in the past was satellite phone to people working in remote parts of Africa or areas afflicted by conflict. This service is now being replaced by the ever increasing and more stable internet and telephone access via satellite (VSAT).

Since 2003 we provide Internet access, VoIP and multicast services to mission hospitals, diocesan centres, catholic Schools and Universities, Catholic and Community Radio Stations, Church and other NGOs and humanitarian organisations.

SSR is currently working to implement its own satellite platform for new technologies that will enhance and make more affordable the service to these clients.

SSR is mainly active in Africa at the moment, but will soon expand its satellite connection service to Asia and South America. SSR supports a network of more than 900 VSAT remote sites in the field and the service includes internet access, phone calls (VoIP), e-learning, radio content distribution, both in KU and C-Band, using 4 Intelsat satellites (IS 10, IS 1R, IS904, and Telstar 11), for Africa, Eastern Europe and the Caribbean.

SSR also tries to source affordable communication equipments for its wide range of development and Church clients. Equipment request includes: PCs and accessories, digital photo/video cameras, satellite phones, audiovisual equipment such as radio stations, audio/video editing kits, mini TV stations, digital production and “on air” facilities, etc.

For some years now, SSR has supplied more than 150 affordable FM Radio production and broadcasting studios to small communities and diocesan radio stations in Africa. Today there is a new demand for TV production and broadcasting studios as community media develop as tools for social communication and development.
